And then existence is a blessed dream, So blissful, that the earth seems paradise. But when thou'rt absent, time drags slowly by, And o'er my soul a shadow dark is drawn,

Of more than earth, a scraph from above,

And in that night of life, my heart would fly To thy bright presence eager for the dawn. When weary cares oppress the clouded mind, And all seems dreary as a desert lone, My thoughts I turn to thee, and ever find A quiet, peaceful, charm, around me thrown.

Ah! wealth and honor, all are little worth,

Without thy love so priceless and so fond,

To cheer me on my pilgrimage through life, And guide the soul to endless bliss beyond. ANNIE MORGAN.

SHOCKING DEATH OF A YOUNG LADY .- On Saturday afternoon, says the Boston Traveller, at the satinet factory of F. M. Bardwell & Co., South Belcherton, as we learn from a correspondent of the Worcester Spy, Henrietta Fuller, eighteen years of age, a weaver, was caught by her dress in the machinery, and carried around at the rate of one hundred revolutions per minute. With every revolution her head struck against the strong iron frame work which supported the regulator, crushing her forehead and forcing her eyes from their sockets, while her body and limbs were shockingly mangled and broken. The cask and the ceiling were covered with the marks of the catastophe, and the body was so firmly bound to the shaft that her steel skirts were cut with chisels before she could be liberated. Her

Ladies' Gardening .- An exchange suggests the following rather novel system of gardening for ladies;-"Make up your 'beds' early in the morning; 'sow' buttons on your husband's shirt; do not 'rake up' any grievances; protect the 'young and tender branches' of your family: 'plant' a smile of good temper in your face, and carefully 'root out' all angry feelings, and count on a 'good crop' of happiness."
